General Information

Short summary

A German start-up offers workshops, consultations, and a shop with eco-friendly products for medical practices to help doctors and healthcare professionals become more ecologically sustainable. Their aim is to make the healthcare industry greener and provide alternatives to conventional products.

Full description

A German start-up is since 2022 dedicated to promoting sustainable healthcare by assisting doctors and healthcare professionals in adopting environmentally conscious practices. They offer interactive workshops and consultations where they collaborate with your practice team to develop sustainable solutions. From reducing waste in your daily practice to transitioning to more eco-friendly products, they show healthcare professionals how to gradually implement a more sustainable approach.

They have established the first sustainable shop for medical practices, offering a consistently sustainable product range. They conduct thorough research and evaluation of each product based on ecological criteria to ensure it meets their sustainability standards. The start-up is currently looking for manufacturers of environmentally friendly products in healthcare area to add to their online shop.
