General Information

Short summary

A Danish company is designing and selling a modern insulating textile product and is looking for a manufacturer of high-quality textile products. The product is a textile "haybox", that allows the end customers to save energy and money when cooking.

Full description

A small Danish company sells a modern haybox, that allows users to save energy and money when cooking. The haybox-principle is, that every dish, which requires cooking for more than 5 minutes, can be completed in the well-insulated haybox without further use of energy. The haybox is in modern design and is constructed in denim and a thick layer of polyester insulation material. The Danish company is looking for a new manufacturer with experience sewing several layers of denim and insulating material together.

Advantages and innovations

The haybox-principle is old but has become increasingly relevant in the present time of climate and energy-crisis, by saving both energy, money and time for the end user.

Technical specification or expertise sought

The Danish company will provide detailed design and material specifications both for the product and for the packaging. The manufacturing partner should:

- procure all materials required
- sew the haybox according to specification. Experience with thick denim and insulation material required.
- procure packaging boxes and pack the hayboxes
- ship the hayboxes to address in Denmark.
